A Guided Visit to the Musée Fin-de-Siècle

Join us on Saturday, April 5, for a guided visit of the new Musée Fin-de-Siècle which presents Brussels as the cultural crossroads of Europe at the turn of the century, from 1868 to 1914. This exceptional collection of works by Belgian artists such as James Ensor, Fernand Khnopff, Léon Spilliaert, Victor Horta, Henry Van de Velde or Philippe Wolfers, and by foreign artists such as Paul Gauguin, Auguste Rodin, Pierre Bonnard, Emile Gallé, Louis Majorelle and Alphonse Mucha,... places the art scene at the heart of international creativity.

With the organization of the salons of Les XX (1883-1894) and La Libre Esthétique (1894-1914), in the very rooms of this museum, Brussels became a unique hub for creative work. It didn't identify itself with the Impressionist wave but found in the conjunction of Symbolism, the Wagnerian movement and Art Nouveau the emblems of an identity that did, to a great extent, shape the face of the city. "Brussels, capital of Art Nouveau" is not just a matter of architecture. The term refers in the first place to the dynamism of a society. And this society made its mark in every art discipline: literature, painting, opera, music, architecture, photography, and poetry; and through the works of Maurice Maeterlinck, Emile Verhaeren, Jean Delville, Henri Evenepoel, Constantin Meunier, Maurice Kufferath, and Guillaume Lekeu, to name a few.

This is a tremendous opportunity for you to delve into the splendor of the late 1800's and early 1900's!

Our guide will once again be the excellent Lieve De Jonghe. Please note that this visit is limited to 20 people.

About Annie

The famous American comic strip, Little Orphan Annie, took its name from the 1885 poem "Little Orphan Annie", written by James Whitcomb Riley and published by the Bowen-Merrill Company.

The comic strip Little Orphan Annie made its debut on August 5, 1924 in the New York Daily News. It ranked number one in popularity in a Fortune poll in 1937. The comic strip's popularity declined over the years; it was running in only 20 newspapers when it was cancelled on June 13, 2010.

Little Orphan Annie inspired a radio show in 1930, a film adaptation by RKO in 1932, starring Mitzi Green as Annie and another film by Paramount in 1938, starring Ann Gillis.

The Broadway musical Annie with music by Charles Strouse, lyrics by Martin Charnin, and the book by Thomas Meehan. The show hit the stage in 1977 and was a huge success. The original Broadway production ran for nearly six years, setting a record for the Alvin Theatre (now the Neil Simon Theatre). It spawned numerous productions in many countries, as well as national tours, and won the Tony Award for Best Musical. The musical's songs "Tomorrow" and "Hard-Knock Life" are among its most popular musical numbers.

Perhaps the best loved and most well known version of Annie (which is our personal favorite!) is the Columbia Pictures 1982 film adaptation. Another film adaptation was made by Disney in 1999.
