Deloitte Tax Seminar – Last Call

As an American citizen, you know it is your obligation to file a tax return on your worldwide income every year. But perhaps the U.S. Tax Code isn't clear enough when it comes to your situation? Or you're just plain confused by the new tax changes? So what do you do? Come along to Deloitte's annual ACB tax seminar, and ask the questions to get the answers for all your U.S. tax needs. A team of Deloitte experts is prepared to give you an update on the latest U.S. tax changes and planning strategies, and set you on the right path.

Topics covered during the seminar include:

- Income tax updates;
- Estate tax;
- New reporting requirements for foreign financial assets;
- Increased focus on Passive Foreign Investment Companies and Foreign Trusts.

The World's Most Expensive Gold Coin to Visit Brussels

The world's most expensive gold coin will go on display in Brussels this month. The 1933 Double Eagle $20 gold piece is a legend in coin collection circles, and is on show at the Belgian Royal Library on Friday and Saturday, March 9-10.

The coin is one of just two 1933 Double Eagles saved by the U.S. Mint and given to the Smithsonian Institution in 1933. Nearly half a million $20 gold coins were originally minted in 1933 in the midst of the Great Depression, but only 13 are known today. The rest were melted down before they ever left the United States Mint, as part of a strategy to remove the United States from the gold standard and stabilize the American economy.

This is the first time that a 1933 Double Eagle will be exhibited in Europe. The European tour that takes in seven countries is arranged by the Samlerhuset Group, a parent company of Het Belgische Munthuis/La Maison de la Monnaie Belge, with a very special loan provided by the Smithsonian Institution. This is the first time that the Smithsonian has sent an object from its numismatic collection on tour in Europe.

The 1933 Double Eagle will be displayed alongside a collection of other notable U.S. coins, including the 1907 high relief $20 gold coin; the Capped Bust $5 gold coin (1807-1812), and the $20 Liberty gold coin (1849-1866).

Event Details

Date: Friday, March 9 and Saturday, March 10

Time: Friday 2:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m., Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Jazz Brunch at the Sheraton Brussels Airport Hotel

Here's the chance to spend a lazy Sunday afternoon enjoying fine food, sipping wine, and listening to live jazz played by top artists.

Come along to the Sheraton Brussels Airport Hotel on Sunday, March 18 for the monthly Jazz Brunch. There will be an elaborate spread of freshly prepared hot and cold starters, fish, meat, and pasta dishes, soups, salads, and a variety of delicious homemade desserts. In addition to the buffet and entertainment, the all-in price includes an apéritif, wine, fruit juices, water, coffee, and on-site parking. There is no charge for children under 10.

This month's jazz entertainment features the Swingmasters, a home-grown musical combo that plays swing-style music from the '50s. You'll tap your toes to such all-time hits as Sweet Sue, Take the "A" Train, It's Only a Paper Moon, and Mood Indigo.

If you are looking for a real treat, this is a must-do event.

Retiring in Belgium: A Guide for Expats

Reviewed by Chuck Westpheling, 31 years (25 years retired) in Belgium

This handy guide for oldsters contemplating retiring in Belgium is authored by The BRATS (Brussels Retired Expats), four Brits and two Americans, all with different business careers and overseas experiences, with an average of over 23 years of retired life in Belgium. Their aim? To provide folks thinking of living their retirement dream here, particularly British and American readers, something to chew on before making that decision – something The BRATS wish had been available to them all those years ago – and still does not exist. Do they succeed? You bet. Their little 55-page book is invaluable to any Brit or American considering settling here for their retirement years.

The BRATS ask the reader in the opening chapters to carefully consider that retirement in general is embarking on a new and different lifestyle, particularly in a foreign land – even if it is a familiar one. It involves determining how to spend those retirement years (what is one really going to do without a real job?) and if the reader really wants to live those years that way in a foreign country, particularly Belgium. These are important questions, but because only the reader can answer them, the authors discuss what's really involved in this literally life-changing matter.

In five of the succeeding chapters, of a total of 10 including a very brief summary, The BRATS address the nuts-and-bolts crucial to the decision to retire in Belgium: money, health care, and housing. Separate chapters address taxes, pensions, investments, medical care and (shrouded by an unclear title) housing, to include rest homes and palliative care. Each provides a succinct and matter-of-fact analysis of the situation in Belgium with regard to the subject at hand, and describes how it differs from that in the U.K. and the U.S. to show the reader clearly how the distinctions may impact the pending decision to stay. Pitfalls, as in the particular case of estate planning, are highlighted. This small guide cannot be comprehensive in explaining these matters, but the book is larded with references to agencies, activities, and websites in Brussels, Flanders, and Wallonia, where more detailed information can be obtained, often in English. Even a quick read, however, provides more useful information for someone contemplating retirement in Belgium than is available in any other single source I know. I sought in vain for such a guide when I was considering retiring here 25 years ago.

The book includes two checklists as appendices and an index. One checklist addresses factors to consider in the decision to retire in Belgium. The other is an outstandingly complete list of information that should be available to the surviving spouse, partner, or family member of a deceased person, particularly appropriate for a death overseas.

Is there room for improvement in a subsequent effort I hope is forthcoming? The chapter on the importance of becoming computer-literate late in life is very good, but it is not unique to retirement in Belgium. It would be better placed in the opening, more generic, section about retirement planning in general – and then note therein the inclusion of dozens of websites in the later chapters (with nary a postal address for those without computer access). How to find these critical independent advisors expert in both Belgian and home country taxation, pensions, and investments so wisely recommended would be extremely helpful. I'd like to see information on Belgian radio, TV, and libraries.

The current economic crisis is changing the financial landscape in Belgium, the U.K. and the U.S. with regard to pensions and taxes, and more changes are surely coming, so an update of this little book in a few years time will be very useful. In the meantime, it's not just the best thing of its kind available – it's the only thing. The guide is well worth its price, not least because all profits from its sale go to two worthy Belgian-based charities, the Community Help Service (www.chsbelgium.org) and the British Charitable Fund (www.bcfund.be). Buy one for any friend who is thinking about joining us in retirement here.

Retiring in Belgium: A Guide for Expats* costs €15 and is available at the offices of the Community Help Service (Boulevard de la Cambre 33, 1000 Brussels) and at Waterstone's (Boulevard A. Max 71-75, 1000 Brussels), or you can order a copy (€15 + postage) directly from the CHS at 02/647.67.80.

Sign up by Wednesday, February 29 to attend the book launch of Retiring in Belgium: A Guide for Expats to be held at Fulcra International [Avenue de Tervuren 168, 1150 Brussels (Woluwe St.-Pierre), www.fulcra_international.com] on Tuesday, March 6 from 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Saint Patrick's Day Ball

Fancy a five-star dinner, a spectacular Riverdance-style performance, and a whirl around the dance floor? Join the Irish Club of Belgium at their annual St.-Patrick's Day Ball, this year to be held at the Conrad Hotel on Saturday, March 17, St.-Patrick's Day itself.

Members of the American Club of Brussels are welcome to attend this elegant, black-tie event for the advantageous members' price of only €75. To get the reduced price, you must specify that you are a paid-up ACB member when you register on the Irish Club's website (www.irishclub.be). This popular event has sold out in previous years, so book early. A table will be reserved for the American Club of Brussels. Join your fellow ACB members for a delightful evening of fun and frolic. Remember, on St.-Patrick's Day, everyone is Irish!

Pioneers' Dinner

The Pioneers' Club is pleased to welcome His Excellency Khazar Ibrahim as our guest speaker at the spring dinner on the evening of Tuesday, April 3 at Château Ste.-Anne in Auderghem.

Mr. Ibrahim is the Ambassador of the Republic of Azerbaijan to NATO. Prior to his appointment to that position in 2011, he was an advisor to Azerbaijan's ambassador to the United States. During his time in Washington, D.C., Mr. Ibrahim obtained a Master's degree in security studies at Georgetown University.

Mr. Ibrahim has also served as the press secretary to the Foreign Ministry of Azerbaijan, a high-visibility post in a country that is at the center of energy politics. In addition to his degree from Georgetown, he holds an MA in international relations from Baku State University.

Mr. Ibrahim will speak on the role of Azerbaijan in the worldwide energy economy and on other issues relating to Azerbaijan's role in global politics. He is an engaging speaker, personable and well versed in topical current issues.

We expect a large demand for this dinner, but space is limited and is by invitation only. Please reserve your places early. We look forward to seeing you there.

Canadian Pub Night / Soirée au Pub

Join members of the Canadian Club of Belgium on Friday, March 2, from 7:00 p.m. at Brasserie Kwak [Avenue Emile Vandervelde 2, 1200 Brussels (Woluwe St.-Lambert)] for friendly conversation and a few beers. No reservation is required. This is an open event and everyone is welcome.

Interested in Fine Arts and Architecture?

If your answer is yes, then BRIDFAS may be for you. The goal of the British Decorative and Fine Arts Society of Brussels (BRIDFAS) is to stimulate an understanding and enjoyment of the arts through illustrated lectures and visits to exhibitions. All talks are delivered in English by experts in their field.

The next lecture, When a Pipe is Not a Pipe – René Magritte, will be held at 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, March 14 at the Maison Communale, Avenue Paul Hymans 2, 1200 Brussels (Woluwe St.-Lambert). Welcome drinks will be offered starting at 7:30 p.m. For more information, visit www.bridfas.org.

The Brussels American Community Chorus

The Brussels American Community Chorus invites adults and children over 12 to sing. All nationalities are welcome. Men are especially needed. There is no audition, and no experience is required. Rehearsals are every Monday from 7:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. in Kraainem. The chorus sings to enjoy music and to support the community. It performs several times a year at American and Belgian events. For details, contact Lamdm@attglobal.net.

A Walk on the Wild Side

Join other English-speakers for a guided tour of the Scheutbos, a 50-hectare nature reserve west of Brussels on Sunday morning, March 25, starting at 10:00 a.m. Two guides (one native English speaker and a French-accented one) will explain the methods by which the broad and often unexpected biodiversity of this wonderful reserve is encouraged and maintained. There is no charge, since the only goal of the Friends of the Scheutbos is to educate people in how to preserve nature. The tour is two kilometers long. Children and dogs (please bring pooper-scooper bags) are welcome. Boots or good walking shoes are advised, since parts of the trail can get quite muddy, and there will be some stops for explanations, so warm clothing is recommended.

We will meet at the end of Scheutbosstraat (the rue, not the avenue), which starts on Boulevard Mettwie just opposite the end of Boulevard Machtens, close to the #49 bus "Machtens" stop and the terminus of the #86 bus from De Brouckère. Parking is available at the meeting point. For more information, contact Jean Leveque at 0496/53.07.68.

Event Details
